

Questions and Support

As much as I would love to answer every question personally, the truth is that I get a large volume of messages and questions on a daily basis, and it's simply not possible for me to respond to all of them.

If you have a question about the course material or are looking for support, I encourage you to participate in our forum:

<https://forum.codewithmosh.com/>

Our forum is a great place to connect with other students, ask questions, and get support. In fact, answering others' questions is a great way to reinforce concepts or understand them better. So not only will you be helping others, but you'll also be helping yourself in the process.